Police are looking for a low-budget-porn star wanted in a shocking homicide that came to light Tuesday when a severed foot was mailed to Tory party headquarters in Ottawa.

On Wednesday, Montreal police issued a Canada-wide arrest warrant for Luka Rocco Magnotta, 29.

He's connected to the discovery of a human torso in Montreal and mailed body parts found in Ottawa Tuesday.

The killing was allegedly captured on video and posted to the Internet, and Montreal police confirmed to Metro Wednesday they are aware of the video and have seized a copy. The case is Montreal's 11th homicide of 2012.

Magnotta, who police say also goes by the name Eric Clinton Newman and Vladimir Romanov, is described as white, five-foot-10, weighing 134 pounds with blue eyes and black hair.

Following the grisly discovery at the Conservative Party of Canada's headquarters on Albert Street, Ottawa police intercepted a package containing a hand on Tuesday evening at Canada Post's main terminal in Ottawa. That package was destined for the Liberal Party of Canada, Montreal police said.

Both packages were mailed to Ottawa from Montreal, and police believe the body parts all belonged to the same male victim, although they are waiting for the results of DNA tests.

Airdrie victim's family didn't know of husband's depression

In treatment. Husband was to meet with counsellor on same day he was found dead with his wife and son

JEREMY NOLAÏS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Family members of an Airdrie wife found dead in a ditch Monday had no idea her husband had been suffering from depression, a pastor says.

Hayley Wourms, 23, husband Darren Wourms, 26, and their two-year-old son Cayden were all found dead near St. Walburg, Sask., on Monday. A .22-calibre rifle was also found at the scene of what is presumed a murder-suicide.

Darren Wourms' parents indicated in a statement Tuesday they had noticed their son's mental health deteriorating within the last five months — RCMP accompanied him to hospital for a psychiatric evaluation last month and he was released with medication.

Those revelations came as a shock to Hayley's parents, according to pastor and family friend Linda Tomlinson-Seebach. "They had absolutely no idea," she said. "They are learning all kinds of things that they were not aware of. That's kind of a double blow for them."

RCMP have not classified the deaths a murder-suicide but are not pursuing any suspects in relation to their investigation.

Darren's family indicated the father, who by all accounts loved his family and worked hard to provide for them, had planned to meet with a counsellor Monday.

"He was battling a depres-

Investigation

Autopsies performed on bodies

Investigators have cleared the scene where an Airdrie family of three was found dead in northern Saskatchewan Monday, but little is being revealed about the cause of death.

RCMP Sgt. Paul Dawson said autopsies have been performed and now investigators will bring their findings to the families as they prepare burial and funeral arrangements.

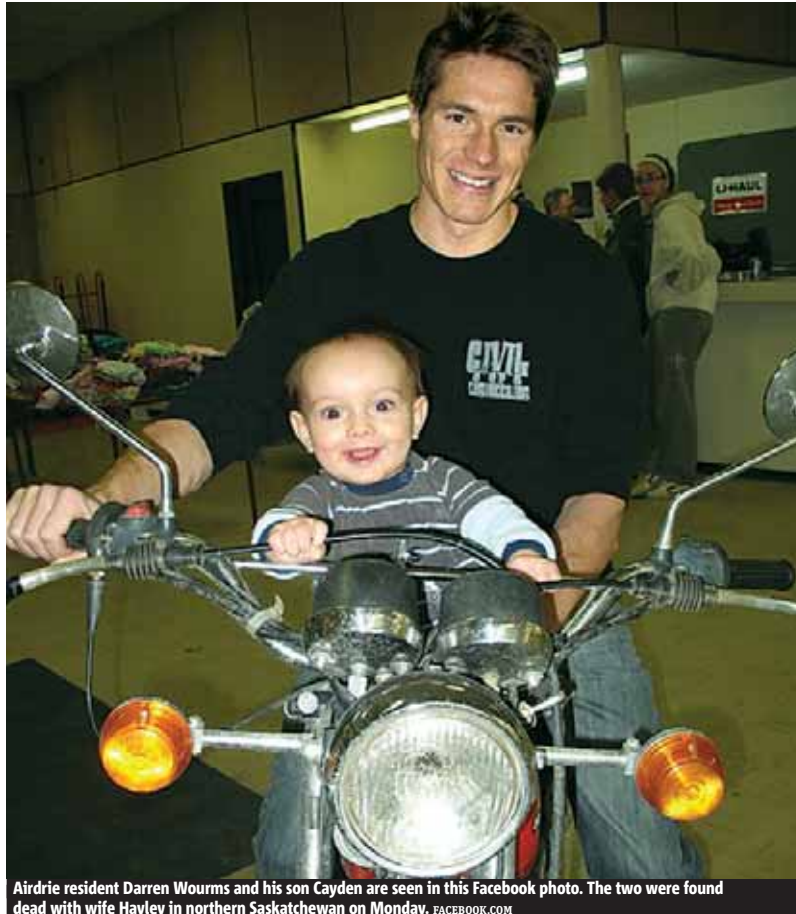

"The most important people in this are the families," Dawson said. "We learned a lot (from the autopsies) ... but we need time to share that with the family and that's what we are going to do over the next few days."

RCMP have not confirmed that Darren Wourms, wife Hayley and son Cayden died as a result of a murder-suicide, and Dawson indicated investigators may never make their full findings public out of respect for their loved ones.

No-charge program for kids aims to end cycle of inactivity

Program revamped.

Organizers believe getting young people involved early will keep them active in years to come

TESSA CLAYTON
calgary@metronews.ca

After Canadian kids received a failing grade in physical activity from Active Healthy Kids, WinSport Canada decided something needed to be done to get kids active.

So WinSport revamped their school program, offering a one-time full-day visit to Canada Olympic Park for grades 1 through 6 — all expenses paid. They hope by giving kids the opportunity to participate once without a cost barrier, they'll remain physically active later.

This freebie will cost WinSport about $200,000 a year, but to them it's worth it.

"It's critically important to us and what we do; to get kids out here, get them participating in sport and getting active," president Dan O'Neill explained.

The diagnosis

- According to Active Healthy Kids, only seven per cent of Canadian kids are meeting the guideline 60 minutes of physical activity a day.
- Forty-six per cent of kids aged six to 11 get three hours or less of active play a week.

According to a release, cost was a major barrier for Calgary teachers in bringing students to the park. By eliminating that, sport becomes accessible to school kids throughout the city.

Grade 4 students from Our Lady of the Assumption School were stoked about the announcement.

"It's all about the experience: if you do it once, you'll want to do it again and again," said Landon Cambell-Grezla. "It gives you exercise, gets other people experience."

"Everybody should try something new, even if they're afraid, don't be scared," added Liam Sargeant.

J.J. Gohmann, left, Liam Sargeant, back, Aden Knowler and Landon Cambell-Grezla, right, give the thumbs-up to WinSport Canada's revamped school program, which allows schools to bring their kids to the park for free on their first visit. TESSA CLAYTON/FOR METRO

Judge tosses conviction in case of Calgary artist's death

Jasmine Herron was killed while biking in New York City.
COURTESY WENDY CLOUSE

The mother of a former Calgary student who was killed while riding her bike in the streets of New York said she's angered by a judge's decision to overturn a conviction in the case.

Jasmine Herron, known by many as Jasmine Valentina, was a Colorado native who came to Calgary to study fibre arts at the Alberta College of Art and Design in 2006.

During her time in Calgary, Herron was heavily involved in the arts and feminist scenes.

After graduating, Herron, then 23, moved to New York City to pursue her artistic career.

On Sept. 11, 2010, she was knocked off her bike and thrown into the path of a moving bus when a woman allegedly opened her car door.

A jury had found the woman guilty of driving with a suspended licence, but a Supreme Court judge tossed out the conviction this week based on insufficient testimony.

Herron's mother's lawyer Bernard Chambers said the decision is frustrating.

"Getting a conviction is like putting together a jigsaw puzzle," he said.

Wendy Clouse said that she's angered that her daughter's life was lost and no one is accepting responsibility for it.

"Everybody makes mistakes," Clouse said from her Colorado home Wednesday. "But she (the accused) knew she wasn't supposed to be driving."

Clouse said her daughter was planning to return to Calgary.

"She loved it."

Organ donation. Alderman spreads word

Organ donation is something that strikes a chord with Calgary Ald. Shane Keating, which is why he took to Olympic Plaza Wednesday to spread the word.

Last year, Keating's executive assistant Jason Letourneau passed away after living for 18 years with a transplanted heart.

Keating also had a niece who was on the waiting list to receive a double-lung transplant.

"She wasn't able to get the transplant because nothing was available," he said.

"We're here to make sure people are aware of the possibility that if circumstances ever come to that, that you can give the gift of life to many, many people."

Keating said promoting awareness is key, as many people don't know they have to communicate their wishes to family members as well as signing the back of their Alberta Personal Health Card to become a donor.

Susan Fritz, a volunteer with the Canadian Transplant Association, said she too has a personal connection to the cause, having received a kidney transplant in 2008.

"It's all about awareness because there are so many people that are still waiting," she said.

Calgary Zoo looking for help in naming baby tigers

Thriving. Zoo officials say the three cubs are healthy and will soon be visible to the public.

It's been determined there are two males and one female cub, each weighing between eight to 8.9 kgs.

Baby tigers have emerged for the first time at the Calgary Zoo, and handlers are looking for help in naming the three balls of fur.

The cubs, now eight weeks old, were given their vaccinations by zoo staff Wednesday, which was the first time animal-care staff had been in direct contact with the cubs.

Curator for Eurasia Colleen Baird said the mother tiger Katja has been excellent in caring for her cubs.

"They are all strong and healthy and full of energy as we found out first-hand this morning," said Baird Wednesday in a release.

Calgarians will have the chance to name the two male cubs in a contest being held between June 11-21 on the Calgary Zoo Facebook page or through the zoo's website.

The female tiger will be named by a sponsor with the highest bid at the zoo's annual fundraiser Tusks and Tails.

Officials say the cubs are beginning to venture out of the tiger barn, usually before the zoo opens, but they are expected to come out to the public's view in June. METRO

Edmonton man faces porn charges involving niece

International investigation. Multiple agencies involved in tracking victim, suspect to Edmonton

HEATHER MCINTYRE
Metro in Edmonton

Days after becoming aware of child pornography being made and distributed in the city, the Alberta Law Enforcement Response Team arrested and charged a 36-year-old Edmonton man.

The man, who cannot be named, was charged May 26 for offences committed against his five-year-old niece when she was an infant, Sgt. Mike Lokken, of ALERT's Northern Alberta Internet Child Exploitation (ICE) unit, said Wednesday.

Police found a dozen videos and several hundred photos of the girl at two months of age on computer equipment seized from a northeast home where she was living with her uncle and father, said Lokken, noting the material "has been several places in the world."

ALERT was notified May 23 by Ottawa RCMP, who had been investigating the file for some time on a tip from U.S. Homeland Security.

"When a child is at risk, that is our number one priority," said Lokken.

The girl is now in the care of the Zebra Child Protection Centre.

Charges

- The man, who has no previous criminal record, has been officially charged with sexual assault, sexual interference, making child pornography and possessing child pornography.

- He is in custody at the Edmonton Remand Centre and makes his first court appearance June 12.

Oilsands monitoring increases under new environmental plan

Alberta's oilsands are under stricter environmental oversight as the provincial and federal governments move to implement a monitoring plan announced earlier this year.

As recommended in the much-anticipated plan, scientists are looking at more sites, more often and for more contaminants, said Alberta Environment spokesman Mark Cooper.

"Both governments are working hard to ensure we have the most progressive and comprehensive monitoring system in the world," he said.

In February, federal Environment Minister Peter Kent joined his provincial counterpart Diana McQueen to announce a radical revamp of how environmental changes created by extensive energy development in northern Alberta would be tracked. The move came after years of criticism from scientists and others that the provincial government was doing a poor job.

Those charges fuelled increasing opposition to the oilsands both in Canada and abroad. That opposition has grown to the point where

Stepping up activity

- Airborne hydrocarbons will be evaluated by 17 new monitoring stations.
- Environment Canada is also stepping up its activity in the oilsands.

it is now affecting the province's attempts to increase its energy exports.

McQueen and Kent outlined a three-year plan that aims to increase the number of monitoring sites by more than 50 per cent. The new approach includes looking for hazardous chemicals ignored under the old plan and extending the geographic reach into Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories.

Ultimately, monitors are also to examine biodiversity, animal toxicity, plant health and habitat disruption.

The plan, estimated to eventually cost about $50 million a year, is underway, said Cooper.

Commercial safety-check stops a necessary measure, CPS says

Preventative. Safety measure may create delays, but it will ensure the safety of all passengers: Sergeant

CELESTE DE MUELENAERE
calgary@metronews.ca

Throughout the week the Calgary police department, along with Peace Officers and vehicle inspectors from across southern Alberta, are conducting a series of commercial-vehicle safety checks at various locations.

Sgt. Wayne McCormick of the Calgary Police Service Truck Unit said that on Tuesday a total of 141 vehicles had thorough inspections during a check stop, including licensing, of which 38 percent of those were deemed unsafe and taken out of service.

Although commuters might get frustrated by the delays the check stops create, McCormick said they are necessary

However, McCormick

Gruesome package shocks PM's aide

A grisly find. Tory staffer Jenni Byrne accepts a mystery delivery, opens it ... and unveils an incredible crime

It was a moment Jenni Byrne will never forget.

One of Prime Minister Stephen Harper's most senior staffers, she was handed a suspicious-looking package when it arrived at Conservative party headquarters just blocks from Parliament Hill.

Byrne warily examined the bloodstained box.

She opened it — and a foul, "horrible" odour escaped and overcame the office.

Inside, was a human foot.

And so began one of the most disturbing police investigations ever.

For after that shock for Byrne on Tuesday, Ottawa police, in a night-long investigation, found a hand at a Canada Post mail facility in the east end of the city.

"I'm fine," Byrne — the national campaign manager for the 2011 general election — said Wednesday as new details emerged about a crime that has horrified the capital — and the country.

Police said both packages were mailed from Montreal.

There, police had been grappling with a grisly find of their own — a human torso found stuffed into a suitcase.

They named a suspect in the case Wednesday afternoon and said all the body parts are from the same victim.

On Parliament Hill, rattled political staffers were keeping a close eye on the mail.

"Our sympathies go out to the staff at the Conservative offices who opened the package," said New Democrat MP Randall Garrison.

"Our thoughts are also with Canada Post employees who had to deal with the second package containing human remains.

"They were both victims of an outrageous and reprehensible act."

Interim Liberal Leader Bob Rae said there is more to the case than just the bizarre nature. "Behind it is a human tragedy." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Poop, pentagrams

Hate mail targets many MPs

From poop to hate mail, MPs get alarming items delivered to their offices.

"I think human waste ... a few years ago," Immigration Minister Jason Kenney said when asked about his weirdest piece of mail.

"I remember we also got some weird, kooky craft, art thing with anti-Christ images and pentagrams."

Liberal MP Denis Coderre said he received faeces in the mail. He also was sent flour, "to try to make me think it was some other substance."

People who work on Parliament Hill say vicious hate mail is not unusual — particularly during debates such as the one on legislation to legalize same-sex marriage several years ago.

Long diatribes from individuals who are perhaps not entirely stable are also frequently received.

Is suspect a kitten killer?

Long before a Canada-wide arrest warrant was issued for Luka Rocco Magnotta, a Facebook group lobbied to have a man by the same name arrested for allegedly killing kittens.

The group was created in response to a video that allegedly shows a kitten being killed in a vacuum-sealed bag.

Luka Rocco Magnotta is the name of a porn actor wanted in the body-parts homicide.

On luka-magnotta.com, an article says Magnotta has been the victim of untrue allegations. "Many hoax websites are created using my image and name," the posting says.

The posting adds: "People need not be told, not to believe what they read and to take it as fact."

A member of the kitten group posted a statement on the Facebook page on Wednesday after learning about the human remains found in Ottawa and Montreal.

"Members of this group have spent over a year searching for this individual, who we believe is also responsible for several videos where animals were killed," the statement read.

Homolka link?

Magnotta has been romantically linked to sex-killer Karla Homolka — a rumour he has vehemently repudiated.

Double-murder suspect killed in B.C. shootout

Confrontation.

Man wanted in two shooting incidents taken down by police only hours after warning was issued

An armed man suspected in a double murder and an attempted murder in Burnaby, B.C., has been killed in a shootout with police.

RCMP caught up with 26-year-old Angus David Mitchell in Maple Ridge, B.C., on Wednesday, about three hours after issuing a public warning about him.

Supt. Dave Walsh said Mitchell was shot in a confrontation with emergency-response team officers in a rural area.

Police were called after reports that someone had seen a van believed to be owned by Mitchell.

RCMP said he was a suspect in the deaths of a man and woman who'd been gunned down in a restaurant on Sunday and in the shooting and wounding of his former landlord on Tuesday.

Police said Mitchell had been evicted from his home six months ago, around the time he came to legally possess a hunting rifle.

Sgt. Jennifer Pound of the Integrated Homicide Investigation Team couldn't say if there was a relationship between Mitchell and the two people who were gunned down in the restaurant. Pound said there are several factors that appear to link the two crimes, including a similar weapon, but forensics experts need to confirm that.

Insp. Tim Shields said Mitchell wasn't known to police, although officers had once been called to a complaint involving him.

Mitchell also had some conflict with former employers and co-workers, and Shields said police warned them Wednesday morning to be on the lookout for the armed and unstable man.

Quebec tuition offer rejected

Negotiations between students and the provincial government have hit a wall, student leaders said Wednesday evening as they returned to a third day of talks, a lot less optimistic about a positive outcome.

During a supper time break, Martine Desjardins, head of one of the university groups, said the Education Department hasn't yet looked at the students' counter-proposal submitted Tuesday.

The talks resumed with the participation of Finance officials who will comment on the students' counter-proposal.

Addressing the proposed tuition fee increase appears to be the key to hammering out an elusive deal to end the four-month dispute.

An offer to cut the proposed tuition fee increase by $35 was dismissed unanimously in talks Tuesday night, said two of the heads of students groups involved in the talks. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Massacre of villagers

UN's human-rights council meets to discuss Syria

A UN body will hold a special session Friday on the deteriorating situation in Syria and last week's massacre of more than 100 Syrian villagers.

The UN Human Rights Council said Wednesday its special session will address the massacre in Houla, Syria, which drew international condemnation and prompted the U.S. and at least a dozen other nations to expel Syrian diplomats.

The massacre has provoked strong global condemnation, but it is unlikely to trigger a military assault similar to last year's NATO-led campaign in Libya to oust Moammar Gadhafi.

A total of 51 nations — including France, Germany, Britain, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates and 25 others signed their support for the session.

Italy to rebuild area hit by second deadly quake

Emilia Romagna region. Second quake strikes northern Italy; towns of Mirandola, Medolla and Cavezzo closest to epicentre

Italian rescue workers removed the last earthquake victim from the rubble Wednesday, bringing the death toll to 17 as the government approved measures to rebuild the quake-hit area.

It's an area which is very crucial to Italy's economic health.

The magnitude-5.8 tremor north of Bologna on Tuesday felled old buildings and new factories and warehouses alike, many of them already weakened by a stronger quake May 20 that measured 6.0 and killed seven people.

In both quakes, the death toll consisted disproportionately of workers toiling in factories, leading to some questions about Italy's building codes or possible corruption.

"I remember with sorrow the deaths in Emilia, who died while working, mostly workers but also entrepreneurs," said Interior Minister Anna Maria Cancellieri. Prime Minister Mario Monti has promised the government would do whatever is necessary to rebuild the region.

Ferraris and Parmesan

The quake-stricken area encompassing the northern cities of Modena, Mantua and Bologna is prized for its super-car production (churning out Ferraris, Maseratis and Lamborghinis), its world-famous Parmesan cheese, and, less well-known but critical to the economy, its machinery companies.

- Counsellors were on hand to help rattled residents who have lived through two terrifying quakes in two weeks in an area not quake-prone.

On Wednesday, the government approved measures, including raising the price of gas by .02 cents a litre, to begin the reconstruction of homes, businesses and historic structures, including many churches, in the stricken area.

Crews on Wednesday pulled the last body from the rubble of a factory in the town of Medolla.

Three others also died in the structure. Civil Protection authorities in Rome say no one else is missing. The quake also injured 350. Many people spent the night in tent camps. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pope lashes out at 'exaggerated' scandal coverage

Comments come after

Pope Benedict XVI broke his silence Wednesday over the leaked-documents scandal that has convulsed the Vatican, saying he was saddened by the betrayal but grateful to those aides who work faithfully and in silence to help him do his job.

Benedict made his first direct comments on the scandal in off-the-cuff remarks at the end of his weekly general audience. He lashed out at some of the media reports about the scandal, saying the "exaggerated" and "gratuitous" rumours had offered a false image of the Holy See.

The Italian media have been in a frenzy ever since

Difficult to explain

• The motivations for the leaks remain unclear. Some commentators say they appear designed to discredit Benedict's No. 2, the Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone. Others say they're aimed at undermining the Vatican's efforts to become more financially transparent. Still others say they aim to show the 85-year-old Benedict's weakness in running the church.

WikiLeaks. Assange loses extradition case

Britain's Supreme Court has endorsed the extradition of WikiLeaks chief Julian Assange to Sweden, an important turning point in the Internet activist's controversial career.

Assange, 40, has spent the better part of two years fighting attempts to send him to the Scandinavian nation, where he is accused of sex crimes. The U.K. end of that struggle appeared to come to a messy conclusion Wednesday, with the nation's highest court ruling five to two that the warrant seeking his arrest was properly issued — and Assange's lawyer arguing that the case should be reopened.

Supreme Court president Nicholas Phillips, speaking for the majority, acknowledged that Assange's case "has not been simple to resolve," but that the court had concluded that "the request for Mr. Assange's extradition has been lawfully made and his appeal against extradition is accordingly dismissed."

Assange won't be extradited immediately no matter what happens. His lawyer, Dinah Rose, stood up after the verdict to say that the decision was based on evidence that was not argued during the appeal and requested time to study the verdict further with an eye toward trying to reopen the case.

Phillips said he would give Rose two weeks to make her move.

Even if the Supreme Court refuses to reopen the case, Assange could appeal to the European Court of Human Rights, although extradition experts have said that route wasn't likely to block his removal to Sweden in the long run.

Thailand censorship

Webmaster receives 8-month suspended sentence for not removing comments

A court sentenced a Thai webmaster Wednesday to an eight-month suspended sentence for not moving quickly enough to delete online comments deemed insulting to the country's royalty in a case widely seen as a test of freedom of expression in Thailand.

While the ruling showed leniency, it also sent the message that Internet content in the Southeast Asian nation must be self-censored. Chiranuch Premchaiporn had faced up to 20 years in prison for failing to quickly remove 10 comments others had posted on her Prachatai news website.

She told reporters she found the verdict reasonable but still had thought she would be acquitted. The case drew international concern over censorship of the Internet in general and the liability of a website operator for comments posted by a third party.

"Today's guilty verdict for Chiranuch Premchaiporn, for something somebody else wrote on her website, is a serious threat to the future of the Internet in Thailand," Taj Meadows, Asia Pacific spokesman for Internet services giant Google, said by e-mail.

"Telephone companies are not penalized for things people say on the phone and responsible website owners should not be punished for comments users post on their sites," he wrote.

Martin Short plays it cool after Kathie Lee's on-air gaffe

A comedy of errors. Today Show host asks Canadian comedian how his dead wife is doing, then tweets embarrassing apology

Kathie Lee Gifford
EVAN AGOSTINI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

He answered with poise and handled it like a true professional without correcting Kathie Lee and making things even more awkward than they already were.

Once Gifford was alerted to her embarrassing error, she took to Twitter to clear the air, tweeting, "I send my sincerest apologies to @MartinShort and his family. He handled situation w/enormous grace and kindness and I'm so grateful."

The only problem with that, is @MartinShort is an account with only 81 followers and a history of just one obscure tweet from 2009. Since Martin Short has stated he has no interest in joining Twitter, we're assuming that @MartinShort is not his account.

We're sure Kathie Lee meant her apology, but we'd be quicker to forgive if it had been directed to the correct Martin Short.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Wednesday was an embarrassing day for Kathie Lee Gifford.

In what could well be the gaffe of the year, Gifford made a humiliating mistake during an interview with actor Martin Short on The Today Show.

Then, she directed her apology to the wrong Martin Short.

During an interview with Short in the morning, Gifford led into what appeared to be an unscripted conversation with him by telling viewers that he has one of the happiest and best marriages in show biz. She went on to ask him, "How many years has it been for you guys?"

Short answered that he and his wife have been married for 36 years. Kathie Lee then playfully teased Short about how he and his wife are still in love and asked, "Why?"

Seems like a charming conversation when you leave out one glaring, elephant-in-the-room factor: Martin Short's wife, Nancy Dolman, died of ovarian cancer in 2010.

You wouldn't know it was a touchy subject by watching Short's composure during the awkward line of questioning.

She was unable to claim either award in person until now because she was under house arrest for 15 of the past 24 years and, even when free, afraid to leave Myanmar in case the country's military junta barred her return.

Bono devoted a series of U2's 2009 concerts to Suu Kyi, demanding her release from house arrest.

The 33-year-old extremist, who has made similar threats before, has confessed to the killings but denies criminal guilt, saying the victims had betrayed their country by embracing immigration.

Five officers who testified at Breivik's murder trial said they found no proof of anyone being complicit in his plans or helping him in any way in the bomb attack in central Oslo that killed eight people and the subsequent shooting spree that left 69 dead at a Labor Party youth retreat on Utoya island.

Chief investigator Kenneth Wilberg told the court that police were sure of their findings and that they also found no proof Breivik belonged to Knights Templar, as claimed by the killer.

Taylor handed 50 years in prison

Court ruling.

Amputees in Sierra Leone rejoice at ex-warlord's sentencing

Amputees still struggling to lead normal lives years after being mutilated by rebels in Sierra Leone hailed the decision at The Hague on Wednesday to sentence the man who backed those rebels, ex-Liberian president Charles Taylor, to 50 years in prison.

In a landmark ruling by the Special Court on Sierra Leone last month, Taylor became the first former head of state since the aftermath of World War II to be convicted. The 64-year-old Taylor was found guilty on 11 counts of aiding and abetting the Revolutionary United Front rebels in Sierra Leone, who murdered and mutilated tens of thousands of people during this country's 11-year brutal civil war which ended in 2002.

People maimed in the war gathered in the Sierra Leonean capital Wednesday to watch the proceedings of the Taylor trial via a live feed from The Hague, and rejoiced when judges in The Netherlands announced the 50-year sentence.

"That makes me the happiest person on Earth," said Alimami Kanu, whose right hand was hacked off by the RUF when he was 11 years old.

Siah Lebby, whose left leg was butchered by the rebels, said the tough sentence sends a strong signal. "After they have seen, they have seen what hap-

Justice

Liberians observe judgment

Taylor is an ex-warlord whose rebel forces invaded Liberia in 1989, marking the start of that country's vicious civil war. He eventually ran and was elected president, before being forced out by another rebel group. In Liberia, which shares a border with Sierra Leone, the irony has always been that Taylor is being tried for crimes he aided and abetted, rather than the ones that he is accused of directly carrying out in his own country.

In the Liberian capital of Monrovia, Suzannah Vaye watched the proceedings and hailed the sentence. Her husband was killed during the last days of Taylor's government in 2003. He was last seen in the hands of the ex-president's security force.

"Today, I join Sierra Leoneans in saying this should be a lesson to people that God has his own way of bringing judgment," Vaye said.

LEYMAH GBOWEE

Who said sex and politics don't mix? Led by Leymah Gbowee, a young mother, Liberian women went on a sex strike to end the country's brutal civil war. They were successful. Last year Gbowee won a Nobel Peace Prize for her campaign.

USING SEX AS A WEAPON

Leyma Gbowee calls herself an ordinary Liberian mother of six. But without her mass women's movement, Liberia's civil war would still be raging. Gbowee's "peace warriors" have given African women a higher profile, too — and Liberia's president is now a woman. But with the exception of former president Charles Taylor, Liberia's warlords remain free.

Charles Taylor is the first-ever head of state to be convicted by the International Criminal Court. Do you feel vindicated?

When someone has been terrorizing communities, and your community has been violated, of course you're relieved he has been convicted. It doesn't matter that Taylor has been convicted for war crimes he committed in Sierra Leone, not Liberia. We've waited for a long time, so we're happy. There's a sense that justice has finally been served, and that Taylor will pay for his crime.

Are sex strikes an effective strategy to end wars?

They're effective in the sense that they get people's attention. Sex is an exotic thing, and many people would say it's a taboo subject. But when someone dares to bring it to the attention of the public, it has two results. People start saying, "Who's this person doing this?" and they start asking why the person is using sex to highlight an issue. And it gets men thinking. There are a lot of good men out there! The percentage of men who wage war is very small. Good men outnumber evil men, but why are they silent? Our strategy helps the good men because it gives them a reason to take action.

So it's not the sex strike per se, but the support it gives good men, that makes it an effective strategy?

Yes. Every man is interested in the act of sex. We withheld sex from our spouses to get attention, and our husbands obviously noticed. We said, "We need you to take a stand." And they did.

How many other alleged Liberian war criminals are there who should also face justice?

That's the biggest debate in Liberia right now. Since Taylor's conviction there has been a lot of discussion about the role former warlords still play in Liberia. In the case of Prince Johnson, people are saying that he, too, should be brought to justice. We need to start the conversation about people's role in the Liberian civil war and what should be done with them.

Prince Johnson has since become a member of parliament in Liberia.

The difference in African politics versus politics in the West is that people tend to rally around their identity. Liberia is no exception. Some people, including myself, don't want a person who committed some of the worst atrocities in our civil war as a member of parliament, but if you ask the people of his tribe, they see him as a hero.

Madeleine Albright likes to say that the world wouldn't be a better place if women were in charge — it would be like high school all over again. Do you agree?

It would be a much better place than it is now. Are all men bad? No. But I think when it comes to world politics, women bring something uniquely different to the table. Men often have values and principles, but politics tends to override them. Politics isn't a popularity contest; it's about achieving lasting changes. That's what women are good at.

The Nobel Peace Prize can be a blessing — as in the case of Mother Theresa — or a curse. Which has it been for you?
For me it's a gift from God. I come from a very humble background, and I'd never have thought that something like this could come my way. I can never refer to any gift from God as a curse.

RIM shares in steep decline

Research In Motion. Analysts take gloomy view of BlackBerry maker after forecast of loss, layoffs

A fresh batch of takeover speculation greeted BlackBerry-maker Research In Motion on Wednesday as analysts weighed in on the company's projected operating loss in the current quarter and its prospects for survival.

Shares of the Waterloo, Ont.-based company tumbled another 6.5 per cent, inching toward becoming a single-digit stock, after a statement from RIM late Tuesday said it hired two outside firms to advise on its troubled business and financial performance.

RIM was down 82 cents to close at $10.66 on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Chief executive Thorsten Heins said competition is affecting sales of RIM smartphones, and that it would respond by reining in costs and cutting staff by unspecified numbers throughout the rest of the year.

But analysts are concerned about the speed at which RIM is reeling in expectations ahead of the roll-out of the new BlackBerry 10 operating system later this year.

Canadian economy has 'oilsands fever': Report

Dutch Disease. Two studies take differing views on resource exports and long-term economic growth

On the eve of NDP Leader Tom Mulcair's visit to Alberta's oilsands, a new report backs his claim that Canada's economy suffers from a form of Dutch Disease.

A study released Wednesday by the Pembina Institute says Canada has come down with a unique strain of the phenomenon, dubbed "oilsands fever," that is producing near-term economic benefits that are often overstated.

The report says these benefits are spread unevenly across the country and could be hiding economic turmoil down the road. But another report by a different group says Canada's oil-and-gas industry is spreading the wealth by using the money earned from booming exports to buy goods and services from the rest of the country.

The two reports were released simultaneously as Mulcair prepares to embark on his first tour of the oilsands.

The NDP chief has been lambasted by western premiers and the federal Conservatives for suggesting that oil exports raise the value of the Canadian dollar, which in turn hurts the economy in other parts of the country.

The phenomenon is dubbed the "Dutch Disease" in reference to the manufacturing decline that occurred in the Netherlands after a boom in natural gas exports in the 1970s.

"The result appears to be a uniquely Canadian strain of the Dutch Disease that could be called 'oilsands fever' — a strain that is beginning to create clear winners and losers in Canada's economy and could pose a significant risk to Canada's competitiveness in the emerging, clean energy economy," the report says.

A separate report also released Wednesday by the Macdonald-Laurier Institute found all provinces will enjoy benefits from oil- and gas-rich western provinces that far outweigh any ill effects from a higher Canadian dollar. "While the so-called 'Dutch Disease' mechanism may operate, in practice it is partially (perhaps more than fully) offset by the gains to the overall Canadian economy documented by these studies," the report says.

Western tour

Before departing on his western tour, NDP Leader Tom Mulcair, pictured, insisted he's not against development, he's only advocating sustainable development.

- And he stressed that applies not just to the oilsands but to natural-resource projects all across the country.

SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE

SKEPTICS, ASSEMBLE!

HE SAYS...
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca/hesays

Don't tell anyone, but I'm in a band of superheroes. It's not easy. But with great powers come great responsibilities, so we struggle onward.

You see, I'm a Skeptic. And we are shunned and misunderstood.

I am ... Captain Incredible! Defender of critical thought, wielder of common sense, saving the world from the Bible Thumper, Flim-Flam! and Dr. Alternative.

To enemies, "Skeptic" translates to closed-minded jerk who wouldn't recognize his spirit guide if it bit him on his chakra.

But we just want evidence. If you claim that God will help me find my apartment keys, or that my aura is the colour of Doritos, then I want questions answered. First and foremost: Do you bang your head often getting into cars?

Sorry. Captain Incredible takes that back. I'm a poor spokesperson for the Skeptic Squad, as I have the same sense of restraint and tact as a U.S. presidential campaign.

This is my life, my curse. I must confront believers who say, "I feel sorry for you" and work with friends unaware of my secret identity as they compare star signs. The only "knocking on wood" I do is the repeated head-to-desk motion. It's the only way I keep from getting angry. Don't make me angry. You wouldn't like me angry.

Many of you are aligned against me. But maybe you'll understand if you gaze upon some of my exciting adventures:

Captain Incredible No. 1: The Family!

Trapped for two decades inside a nuclear family that forces him to church every Sunday, our hero discovers his powers when he turns on his captors and says: "Isn't it wrong of me to consume the body of your Lord when to me it's only ice-cream wafer?" Even the Mummy, with her powers of lay ministry, cannot deflect the logic blast. A new hero joins the Skeptic Squad!

Captain Incredible No. 7: Magnet Man!

Our hero suffers his first defeat when he meets Magnet Man, bearer of the Magnetic Bracelet. Hearing Magnet Man discuss the bracelet's powers with a bartender, Captain Incredible forgets his logical weapons and instead blurts out, "Why don't you wear bunny ears?! It would have the same effect!" Captain Incredible, met with stares and silence, slinks back to his corner of the Beer Cave.

Captain Incredible No. 21: The Mayor!

The good captain is listening to radio transmissions when he hears his political leader, Toronto Mayor Rob Ford, say, "I like astrology, folks. I follow the stars." Fighting off the overpowering urge to curl up into a ball and die, Captain Incredible remembers the earlier lesson not to let his emotions defeat him. He decides it's nice that the mayor and many of the lefties who hate him have common ground to work from. I may host a summit.

But until then, what adventures await?

All I know for sure is that the skeptic's life is a difficult one, fraught with awkward family barbecues. It's thankless, but we have an unrelenting belief in mankind: That it will get sillier by the day. No doubt about it.

There's more to Alberta comedy than just cowboys

Stand-up shows. A province of mavericks is ready to show the rest of the country how funny the west can be in CBC taping

BACKSTAGE PASS

Lisa Wilton
calgary@metronews.ca

Albertans work hard, play hard and we certainly like to laugh hard.

"Alberta's comedy scene is solid and inspiring," gushes Rebecca Northan, who is hosting the first of two stand-up shows being filmed Saturday for CBC.

"I think the scene has always been strong, because here in the West we have a sense of being Mavericks. And the best comedy comes from the outside looking in."

Now based in Toronto, Northan was a fixture on Calgary stages throughout the 1990s, having honed her improv comedy skills at Loose Moose Theatre and now-defunct comedy clubs, Jester's and Punchlines. She says her training at Loose Moose — the legendary improv theatre that kicked off the careers of Kids in the Hall alumni Mark McKinney and Bruce McCulloch, and successful TV writer Norm Hiscock (Parks and Recreation, King of the Hill) — has taught her to never to be 'too prepared' for anything, including a hosting gig.

"I don't have anything planned," she admits. "But there is a line up of great talent representing a solid cross-section of Albertans who don't fit the cowboy stereotype."

The New West comedy show features an array of fast-rising Alberta talent, including Trent McClellan, Noor Kidwai, Howie Miller, Carmen Stockton and Andrew Albert.

The New West will be followed by Un-Reserved, a 90-minute show headlined by popular Metis comedian, Ryan McMahon. It's the first time an aboriginal comic has headlined a CBC comedy special.

"It's his moment to shine," says producer Peter Hays of Corkscrew Media.

"It's pretty exciting for him. He has a really good following in the prairies and we want to bring him to a wider audience."

McMahon, whose hilarious signature character Clarence Two Toes has found a loyal following on YouTube and the comedian's podcasts, will be joined by musical guest Sheldon Elter. "There is a lot of comedic talent in Alberta," says Hays. "We often think of the Maritimes as the centre of comedy in Canada, but I don't know if that's really true. There are a lot of funny people on the prairies."

The New West and Un-Reserved shows will air as one-hour comedy special on CBC later this summer.

If you go...

- Tickets. For The New West and Un-Reserved are $20 or $30 for both shows. Tickets are available at the door or through ticket-web.ca

Dog guru Justin Silver hosts the new show Dogs in the City. BRIAN FRIEDMAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Summer's new reality TV gone to the dogs

Canines catching on.
Man's best friend the latest sensation

Summer television used to mean reruns. This year it's gone to the dogs.

Several new shows star dogs and their owners in need of help. CBS has the lone network show in Dogs in the City, starring comic, dog trainer and businessman Justin Silver. It's joined by documentaries on PBS and HBO and a series in the works for the Disney Channel, among others.

Each Wednesday at 8 p.m., beginning May 30, Silver will try to help hound and human tackle unsettling problems like joint custody after divorce or dealing with significant others who just moved in.

Is man or mutt usually to blame for problems? It's 50-50, he said, but "a dog's behaviour is shaped by the people in its life." Silver says he won't be the one solving problems, even though he jokes that he speaks dog. Instead, he will provide techniques and experiences so owners can fix their own problems.

"It's that old adage: give a man a fish and you'll fill his belly. Teach him how to fish and he'll never starve. I am teaching you how to fish. But no one learns how to fish perfectly in one hour. It takes constant practice."

If intervention is needed, he will call on his own pit bulls, Chiquita and Pacino. "I use my dogs as much as possible because the thing that influences dogs most is other balanced dogs," he said.

Dogs in the City seems to have a lot in common with The Dog Whisperer with Cesar Milan on the National Geographic Channel and It's Me or the Dog with Victoria Stilwell on Animal Planet. Bad Dog! is another Animal Planet show, although it uses videotape to capture misbehaviour in a test of sorts to see how far an owner's love will stretch.

Documentaries airing in June explore the rewards and redemption of shelter dogs. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says between five and seven million companion animals enter shelters every year

New dramas set to hit Global this fall

Star-packed titles.

"We're having huge success with our scripted shows all over the place."

Marquee dramas about Sherlock Holmes, Chicago firefighters, Vegas mobsters and a renegade submarine crew anchor Global's upcoming prime-time schedule.

Shaw Media says star-packed new titles include the modern day series Elementary, starring Jonny Lee Miller as NYPD Det. Sherlock Holmes and Lucy Liu as Dr. Joan Watson; the gritty '60s-era drama Vegas with Dennis Quaid as a war vet and Michael Chiklis as a ruthless Chicago gangster and the actioner Last Resort with Scott Speedman and Andre Braugher as members of a submarine crew forced to take refuge on an exotic, tropical island.

Content boss Barbara Williams is announcing the 2012-13 lineup today at a splashy event for advertisers featuring talk show host Ricki Lake and NCIS:LA star LL Cool J.

Rogers Media announced its comedy-filled lineup earlier this week while CTV is set to reveal its new slate tomorrow.

Global's fall comedy additions include Go On, starring Matthew Perry as a recently widowed sportscaster whose boss forces him to enter counselling and Guys with Kids, about three 30-something dads trying to hold on to their youth, starring Jesse Bradford, Zach Cregger and Anthony Anderson.

and between three and four million of them are euthanized.

Shelter Me, a PBS documentary, is narrated by actress Katherine Heigl and is sponsored by the pet food company co-owned by Ellen DeGeneres.

It follows an animal control officer, adoption workers, female inmates who train rescue dogs, and vets who acquire former shelter dogs.

"Shelter Me is about the lives that are changed when shelter pets are given a second chance," Heigl said.

Andrew J. Trotto, an Army veteran from Mission Viejo, was teamed up with Tekka, a black Lab rescued from a Wyoming shelter by Freedom Service Dogs in Englewood, Colo.

"If it wasn't for her, I'd be dead right now," Trotto says in the film.

"I was an evil person. I hated you or wanted to kill you," he said, describing the post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) demons that haunted him. "People say suicide is selfish. But when you are in the zone, you're not thinking about that. The terror in your head drives you insane. She (Tekka) will wake me up out of my night terrors."

Shelter Me will air across the country in June. HBO will premiere a documentary called One Nation Under Dog: Stories of Fear, Loss & Betrayal on June 18. The film looks at America's obsession with dogs, how far individuals will go for their pets and what it will take for people across the country to treat all dogs humanely.

The 73-minute documentary looks at the odds stacked against shelter dogs, spay and neuter education, puppy mills, dog-bite victims and how some owners respond when their dog attacks.

The Disney Channel also has a new dog show in the works for the fall and while it does involve a rescue dog, that's where reality ends. The live-action, multi-camera series is called Dog With A Blog and revolves around a dog named Stan (who is really a four-year-old named Kuma). In real life, Kuma is a husky, golden retriever and border collie mix who was rescued from a shelter. In the show, he is adopted to tame a pair of feuding stepbrothers.

Could Prometheus be true?

Deep space mystery. Former head of SETI says we may discover alien life in the next two years

MICHELLE CASTILLO

Metro World News

This summer, Earth is under attack. From action films like Prometheus and The Avengers, to comedies like Men In Black 3, aliens are appearing at the multiplex and threatening the fate of humanity.

But, not so fast, says the former director of the Center for SETI Research, Jill Tarter. The American astronomer believes that these films are just — duh — entertainment.

If extraterrestrial beings were to come to our world, they'd be so technologically advanced that they wouldn't need puny human slaves or our meager food. Plus, there's a giant possibility they wouldn't look like anything we've seen before — or could even think of.

"Whether our imagination is up to the task of really appreciating what nature might do somewhere else remains to be seen," Tarter told Metro World News. "Look at the body plan that evolved. Nature experimented and discarded some and modified other things. There are so many weird things on this planet that we are beginning to appreciate. I think that it might be weirder still from some other environment."

Most of Tarter's career with the non-profit SETI Institute — which stands for the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence — has been dedicated to examining the universe for other beings.

Prometheus, directed by Ridley Scott, hits theatres on June 8. HANDOUT

Tarter, who recently retired, will be discussing her ideas about the possibility of aliens alongside real astronauts and Hollywood sci-fi actors at the upcoming SETICon on June 22-24 in Silicon Valley, Calif.

Tarter believes that humans will discover extra terrestrial life in the next two years. It's a valid question to ponder, especially because for thousands of years, humanity had to rely on priests and philosophers to tell them the "truth" about the universe. Now thanks to astronomy tools like the Kepler space observatory, we have discovered more than 2,000 extrasolar planet candidates to date. Many of them are similar to our home planet.

"We can almost taste the idea that Earth 2.0 is going to turn up in the near future," she said.

Recently, Tarter has been searching for signs of technology in the universe, using it as a proxy for intelligence. While she and her colleagues haven't found any spaceships or ray guns, Tarter doesn't believe that means we're all alone out there.

The data that shows that there isn't any life is also consistent with the possibility that there is abundant life out there.

"We haven't been searching for very long," she admitted.

Blake doesn't need anybody's 'approval'

Blake Lively is getting ready to say goodbye to Gossip Girl, the show that made her a star.

"I think the best way to describe it is like someone who really enjoyed high school, and it's like I'm a senior and I can't wait for the next thing," she tells Bullett magazine. "As an actor who plays a caricature of myself on the show, I don't think I'd say, 'Watch Gossip Girl for my best quality of work.' But I am very lucky to have had that experience."

But shouldn't Lively be worried about how her co-workers might take her remarks, especially with work starting on the show's final season this summer?

"I'm not in the business of trying to win the approval of my cast members, my director or my audience," she insists.

Former co-star accuses Fox of beating women

There seems to be no love lost between former Lost co-stars Dominic Monaghan and Matthew Fox. When asked by a fan about Fox, who was arrested for driving under the influence earlier this month and was sued for assaulting a bus driver last year, Monaghan bluntly responded, "He beats women. Not isolated incidents. Often."

When another fan pointed out that Monaghan was making quite a strong accusation, he responded, "An accusation is when you 'claim' someone did something wrong. I know."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Moves like Adam Levine

MONICA WEYMOUTH
scene@metronews.ca

Adam Levine is a curious creature. Since Maroon 5 started seeping its comfortable radio rock through the airwaves 10 years ago, the seemingly unremarkable frontman and Voice judge has dated his way through intellectual A-listers (Natalie Portman), fluffly pop princesses (Jessica Simpson, circa a very respectable 2006) and Victoria's Secret bombshells (Anne Vyalitsyna).

Is he cute and talented in a non-threatening way? Sure. But we have a feeling his sparkling dating resumé is a result of professional-grade smooth talking, which he whipped out in a new interview with Details magazine.

"There's two kinds of men: There are men who are f—g misogynist pigs, and then there are men who just really love women, who think they're the most amazing people in the world. And that's me," Levine tells the magazine.

But he's a rock star, so he's not perfect, of course. As for sleeping around, he muses, "Maybe the reason I was promiscuous, and wanted to sleep with a lot of them, is that I love them so much."

Laugh all you want, but when was the last time you turned off the bubblegum noise that is Moves Like Jagger? Adam Levine is in our heads, ladies.

Prince Harry has a job opening

When Prince William sat down with Katie Couric for an interview, he said what recently married Royals in line for the throne are supposed to say: "I'm just very keen to have a family, and both Catherine and I are looking forward to having a family in the future."

But more surprising is what younger brother Harry shared.

"I've longed for kids since I was very, very young," said the prince with a reputation for looking hungover on the polo field. "And so I'm just waiting to find the right person, someone who's willing to take on the job."

Harry, we'd like to introduce you to America, where hot girls are willing to let Donald Trump touch them.

Iris van Herpen: The queen of sculpture

The future of fashion.

Metro chats with up-and-coming style star Iris van Herpen about designing, fame and going Gaga

FEDERICO
GEREMEI

Metro World News in Italy

She's shy, she doesn't say much, but she does know what she's doing. We meet Iris van Herpen — a 27-year-old Dutch fashion designer — at the IED (Istituto Europeo di Design) in Rome.

Thanks to her organic and visionary creations, she's quickly risen to fame amongst international talents. Iris' hand-made 3D "sculpture-like" dresses can be found in top museums all over the world.

Not bad for a girl who once had a dream of becoming a ballet dancer.

You're labeled "the architect of fashion", who's your inspiration?

I've never heard anyone refer to me using that expression. Indeed, architecture is a source of inspiration for me, but I am first of all a fashion designer. I work a lot with Isaie Bloch (a Belgian architect who focuses on 3D printing), there's a great synergy between us.

What does fashion represent for you?

Fashion expresses my own identity. It's a mix of my tastes, mood and cultural background.

You've worked with Viktor & Rolf and Alexander McQueen, your icon. Any lessons learned?

I learned to be patient when working. I also learned a lot from his staff, having worked with them on a daily basis.

You've come up with creations for Lady Gaga's and Bjork's performances. What do you think about them?

They're not just singers, they're total artists — two amazing performers. Yet, they are so different.

What do you like about Lady Gaga?

I love that she's completely unpredictable.

And Bjork?

It's hard to express in words but Bjork's music and her way of communicating touches me deep inside.

What do they love about your work?

When I work on a new creation, I focus on finding and conceiving a specific personal identity, something that belongs to the person who is going to wear it. We all have our own individual personality, nothing is fixed nor immutable. Performers such as Lady Gaga and Bjork also rely on dresses — such as the designs that I produce — in order to express all aspects of their personality to the audience.

You are only 27, but you're already incredibly successful. How do you cope with all this at your age?

Everything goes so fast and I am trying to live it all day by day.

Have you always had a clear mind-set, in terms of your goals and ambitions for the future?

No, when I was a kid I wanted to be a ballet dancer. Dance inspired me for a while but at some time — I can't recall when it happened — fashion became my greatest passion.

Any projects in the pipeline?

I do not plan much but I keep fantasizing about a zero gravity fashion show.

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News in London

Here comes the high-street bride as designer Richard Nicoll lifts the veil on his Topshop collection.

"I wanted to offer a younger, cooler alternative to meringue culture," says Nicoll of his first foray into bridal wear.

The feminine collection, available on June 22, consists of seven pieces from short slips to full-length, blush pink-styles in lace and silk.

The question is: How many brides really want to go down the aisle in a piece of modestly priced ($190 to $700) high street clothing? There's the rub.

However, we are never-

How to soothe your sensitive skin

Managing your mug.

Take care of your skin this summer with these handy tips from an expert

Dirty digits

"Even when your hands are clean they can transfer dirt, oils, and other potentially harsh irritants to your face."

Dr. Rajan
Toronto dermatologist

"In my practice one of the most common problems I see in patients is sensitive skin," says Toronto dermatologist Dr. Rajan. Here are Rajan's top tips for caring for sensitive skin.

Do a patch test first

If your skin is extremely sensitive, you should always patch test a new product on a small, inconspicuous area before using it on larger areas. You don't want to risk having a reaction all over your face, so test the new product and wait at least 24 to 48 hours to ensure you don't react.

New products

Introduce new products into your skin-care regime one at a time so you can check for any adverse reactions. If you try more than one new product at a time and have a reaction you won't be able to know which one it was and could risk eliminating a product from your regime that is actually gentle for your skin.

Hands off

Even when your hands are clean they can transfer dirt, oils, and other potentially harsh irritants to your face — so try to cut down on the amount of times you touch your face.

If your face itches or you need to wipe it, try using a clean tissue or cleansing wipe. Some wipes, like those in the Simple brand line, are specifically formulated for sensitive skin with no harsh ingredients.

So if you need to touch your face you can do it knowing no dirt or oils will be transferred that could irritate your skin.

Chill out

"It is something people often forget," says Rajan "but your skin reacts to what is going on in your life."

If you are stressed about something you are more likely to have a flare-up, so take a break and relax — your skin will thank you.

There's more to pomegranates than health drinks and fancy cocktails

Are you over the pomegranate trend yet?

If so, you might want to revisit it once more. This time it's pomegranate molasses, a thick, syrupy concentrate that is sweet and tart and as delicious as it sounds.

If you take the unsweetened juice and boil it down until it is thick and syrupy, you have pomegranate molasses, a popular flavouring in Middle Eastern cooking. Pomegranate molasses once was unheard of outside of ethnic markets, but today can be found in the international aisle of most larger grocers.

And if you can't find it, it's easy enough to make. Buy a bottle of pomegranate juice (or juice concentrate), then boil it until it has reduced and become thick.

The thick, deep-red syrup has an intensely sweet-tart flavour that pairs surprisingly well with savoury dishes, especially grilled meats. Pomegranate molasses and walnuts are a classic flavouring for poultry.

Opened bottles can be refrigerated for long per-

- Ingredients
- 3 tbsp pomegranate molasses
 - 1/2 tsp garlic powder
 - 1/2 tsp salt

 - 2 tbsp lemon juice
 - Ground black pepper
 - 4 cups arugula
 - 2 cups baby spinach

iods. But it's not likely to sit around for long. You don't need to love Middle Eastern food to love what pomegranate molasses can do for the foods you already love.

1. Heat the oven to 450 F. Line a rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper.

2. In a medium bowl, whisk together the pomegranate molasses, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Add the drained chickpeas and toss to coat and set aside to cool.

3. Meanwhile, in a large bowl whisk together olive oil and lemon juice. Season with pepper, then add the arugula and spinach. Toss to coat.

Rhubarb gets decadent with dulce de leche

Dulce de leche, a thick, caramel-like spread, is popular in South American desserts. These individual ice-cream cakes incorporate dulce de leche and are topped with honey-coated roasted rhubarb and apples. For extra decadence, drizzle with additional warmed dulce de leche.

1. Line 6 muffin cups with paper liners. Spoon 2 ml (1/2 tsp) of the crumbs, then 7 ml (1 1/2 tsp) of the dulce de leche into each cup. Spoon in ice cream, packing lightly; smooth tops. Spread remaining dulce de leche on top; sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Cover and freeze

3. To serve, divide half of the sauce among individual dishes. Remove liners from ice cream cakes and place ice cream on sauce. Spoon remaining sauce over top. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fashion gives inspiration for a new keepsake china pattern

Every year, hundreds of new tabletop trends make a splash when the doors at 41 Madison Avenue are thrown open for New York City's Tabletop Week.

This special week allows design trade, store buyers and the media to scour this trade-only building that houses the best of the best and everything to do with tabletop and entertaining products.

Hundreds of manufacturers host parties and events to entice the trade into their fantasy land of table fashion showrooms. Some of the tabletop trends shown are short-lived (remember black octagonal glass dishes from the '80s and over-glazed pottery from the '70s?). Only a few live on to become tabletop classics.

One of the most elegant introductions this season was from the manufacturer

Waterford, who has employed Monique Lhuillier (fashion designer to Hollywood icons like Katie Holmes and Angelina Jolie) to design a tabletop collection reminiscent of a dress she designed called Sunday Rose.

What sets Lhuillier's collection apart from other fashion designers that create collections for the tabletop is that she draws her inspiration from classic elements of her designs and not the trend elements that could be short-lived on a dinner table.

Her tabletop collection called Sunday Rose (after her

Could this replace Royal Albert's Old Country Roses (a bestseller for over 30 years) as a long-time classic china pattern? I think entertaining and fashion critiques alike would agree they'd be happy to dine with Sunday Rose for a very long time.

The Sunday Rose Collection was inspired by one of your iconic dress designs; what inspired the dress?

My bridal collections celebrate romance and femininity with a modern twist.... I took my inspiration from a classic rose flower. I cut silk organza fabric and formed abstract flowers to create a bed of roses effect in the skirt. The textures felt so lush and beautiful and the dress was a runaway success.

What accent colour would you team with your classic white/platinum china collection?

I would accentuate it with blush pink; it's the colour of the moment. I would infuse the blush colour in an accent plate, add blush pink peonies to the floral centrepiece and a add blush linen napkin....Voilà! Colour!

With the popularity of gold tones emerging in home decor would it be wrong to mix gold and silver accents together?

I would add gold accents on flatware and the table decor like salt and pepper accents, place card holders... There are no rules in putting a beautiful table together or mixing metals these days. I am a big believer that food presented well makes for a more joyous event.

Last month, a reader of my column asked me for advice about how to avoid getting laundry stuck within her fitted sheets in the dryer.

To be honest, I really didn't know the answer to the question, so in my column I asked the question to my readers and got back some wonderful suggestions that I would like to share with you.

1. Christine wrote what I thought at first was the most obvious answer. "Dry the sheets separately from your clothing. I don't wash and dry my clothes and bed sheets together."

This makes total sense to me and this is the method I use at home. Just for fun, this was the most popular answer!

2. Bev from Toronto wrote, "Try safety pinning the corners together and then the subsequent four sides, to make a sort of balloon shape. This still allows the sheet to dry, but avoids the annoying problem. Of course large safety pins will be needed, which are available in some dollar stores and most sewing notions outlets."

I love this idea as well, but still think this is too much work and would much rather option #1.

3. Patsy wrote what I think is a truly fabulous suggestion, "If you include small item clothes such as socks and briefs, put them in a mesh laundry bag."

This is such a great idea; I think I am going to put this as a footnote for our laundry class at the Charles MacPherson Academy for Butlers and Household Managers!

Finally I spoke with Bonnie Aprile who is the executive housekeeping teacher at our butler school. She said that sheets and clothing should never be washed and/or dried together as their different sizes and fabric weights dry at different rates.

Thus the rule of thumb is like fabrics and like clothing size should be dried together, so that you do not over/under dry particular pieces.

A sweet place for a little shade

DIY ideas. They're perfect for lazy afternoons with books, summer meals on hot nights or first kisses — install your own gazebo

On DIY Network's Yardcore, fraternal landscape professionals Jake and Joel Moss are ready to set up homeowners with the yard of a lifetime.

They only get a quick tour of the yard and a three-minute peek of the homeowner's interior to get clues, then they make it all happen in 48 hours — without ever meeting the homeowner!

One attractive and useful outdoor structure Jake and Joel may consider installing is a gazebo — perfect for outdoor dining and entertaining.

See the below steps for how to install a dream gazebo in your own backyard.

Assemble your materials

Gazebo kits are available at home improvement stores and can make this outdoor DIY project much easier. There are many different sizes and styles to choose from so be sure to compare options to determine what works best for you and your yard.

The manufacturer's instructions are included in the gazebo kit and many styles will come with their own flooring.

However, if you select a gazebo kit without flooring, buy some pressure-treated wood including posts and cedar planks. A naturally weather-resistant wood such as cedar is both functional and attractive.

Decking screws, a hammer, wrench, leveller, post-hole auger and saw will be helpful to have on hand along with landscape marking paint.

Laying the groundwork

Using the landscape marking paint, mark the desired position of the gazebo posts. Remove any plants from the area.

If you're building the deck flooring yourself, begin by using the posthole auger to dig holes for the posts, about 30 inches into the ground. Next, place the posts into the ground and fill the holes with quick-setting concrete mix and water to hold them steady.

Install the deck frame by connecting the posts with the cedar planks using the decking screws. Remember to wear safety goggles and gloves when cutting boards to size.

Use the leveller to ensure the frame is level and be sure to support the deck's framing with joists in the centre. Add a centre post and cross supports and finish laying the cedar plank flooring.

Assemble the gazebo

Once the deck flooring is complete, assemble the gazebo and attach it to the flooring. Again, the gazebo kit will contain detailed installation instructions and will make construction much easier.

As a basic guideline, fit the tongue and groove boards together to build the walls and secure them with screws. Next, assemble the roof and add the shingles.

Now that the gazebo is built, secure it to the floor boards with screws. Bring out a table and chairs and begin enjoying your outdoor entertaining haven!

Pick up a hammer or pack up a moving box?

Just how rooted are you? New show Reno vs. Relocate explores difficult dilemma faced by homeowners

The dream of home ownership can go awry as time moves on when a house that once was a perfect fit suddenly falls short of meeting your evolving needs.

Whether coping with increasingly cramped quarters as families expand or simply tiring of dwelling in outdated surroundings, many homeowners grow keen to scratch the itch to shape up their property or ship out.

So should you stay or should you go? Designer Robin Lewis and real estate agent Vanessa Roman seek to help befuddled homeowners find the solution in Reno vs. Relocate, which premiered Monday at 9 p.m. ET on HGTV.

"The first thing that we do is take an assessment of exactly what it is that they need in the space, how the space functions, but more importantly, how it's not functioning for them," Lewis said in a recent interview.

Homeowners are able to see a graphic simulation of a renovated home from Lewis, while Roman offers a tour of a new home better equipped to meet their needs. After seeing both options, a choice is made to either opt for a makeover or move.

One of the debut episodes features Sarah and Marc with a tiny kitchen and constant congestion on their home's main floor, coupled with limited work space.

After eight years in the home, and now with two kids, Marc is ready for more spacious surroundings closer to his office. Sarah favours going the reno route, preferring to stay closer to friends, school and her work. The couple is willing to shell out $40,000 for a potential renovation or $600,000 for a new home.

In a hot, expensive market, it may not be possible to afford to remain in your current neighbourhood in a bigger property or to move to a better area, said Roman. In that case, renovation becomes your lone option.

However, in markets where housing is more affordable, it's very easy to pick up and move

Cramped quarters

There are tricks you can use to carve out a little extra wiggle room.

- Dual purpose. One of the basements renovated in the series needed to double as a play space and bedroom for guests.
- Conceal it. Lewis came up with the idea of installing a wall bed that folds away when not in use.
- Sneaky storage. "Another thing is just simple trays underneath your bed or underneath your couch gives you the ability to store smaller items," said Lewis. "It's all pretty straightforward if you just use your noggin."

room," he said.

"Look at what's going to be outside the window, look at how you're going to want to use that room, how you want it to feel, and then make the decision on the paint from there." That includes factoring in furniture and other complementary colours in palette, he added.

Making it work

"Renovations are fantastic, especially because people these days really are trying to find a home — not just a shell to live in."

Designer Robin Lewis

versus staying and undergoing a massive reno, she noted.

"Renovations are fantastic, especially because people these days really are trying to find a home — not just a shell to live in," said Roman. "They want to stay in the same property because they develop a network of friends in the neighbourhood, their children are going to school, they have amenities that are close by."

"Sometimes, as much as you love a property, short of knocking the house down and building something new, it's not going to work. So moving then becomes a very viable option."

For those primed for a new property, Roman said the old adage of "location, location, location" still holds firm as the No. 1 consideration. But she also encourages homeowners to imagine how the property will be amenable to their needs in the short and longer terms.

"You have to imagine the space three years from now, five years from now, 10 years from now," she said.

"Robin and I could buy a house together and 1,100 square feet is great. Six children later? A little small. And you don't necessarily want to move."

While weighing up the decision to renovate, Lewis said the parameters of your budget should set the course of action — and you shouldn't deviate from it. He also suggests itemizing a top-down to-do list.

Whether you're sprucing up a home for sale or staying put, Lewis and Roman say there are simple, affordable ways to make changes.

Both agree paint is a quick, cost-efficient option, but Lewis cautions against splashing any old colour on the wall.

"When you're considering how to paint a room, people look at the paint colours in isolation, by themselves. Look at what's going to be in that

Grow beautiful flowers, not aches and pains

Before you dig. The right tools and some light stretching can stop you from throwing out your back Lugging bags of potting soil, turning compacted flower beds and pulling hard-to-reach weeds offer plenty of exercise, but when these tasks are done incorrectly they can result in stiff and sore joints along with muscle, neck and back pain.

Chiropractors and other specialists who treat people for aches and pains often see a surge in business after the weekends from people who try to get all their gardening done in one go.

"I equate it to the weekend warriors because as soon as you get the nice weather, you see all the flowers everywhere and you go, 'I'm, just going to do it all at once,' which is not the right way to go about it," said Dr. Natalia Lishchyna, president of the Ontario Chiropractic Association.

"Within about a three-week period, from Victoria Day until about mid-June when everybody is getting all their flowers in and gardening done, that's typically the time where you hear about their aches and pains," said Lishchyna, who runs a chiropractic clinic in Oakville, west of Toronto.

The association's public awareness program, called Plant and Rake Without the Ache, was launched because chiropractors were seeing so many patients with aching backs from gardening.

The most common injuries are back strains from lifting and reaching and repetitive strain injuries in the wrist and in the elbow because of the planting action.

Before starting yard work, Lishchyna recommends warming up. "I like to walk around the neighbourhood for 10 to 15 minutes, a brisk walk around. I get inspired by the flowers, the trees and the bushes so that gives me a nice warmup and then I'll come home and do the stretches," she said in a telephone interview.

The legs, back, shoulders, arms and wrists are used the most in gardening. Exercises with diagrams can be found on the Ontario Chiropractic Association website, chiropractic.on.ca.

"As people are doing yard work we want them to take breaks, reasonably three an hour," Lishchyna recommended. "Just to get up to stretch, go get a drink, sit down for a moment, enjoy what you've done so far and then get back to your work."

Don't just do it

"We do want people to consider it a form of exercise and it's a great form of exercise, but you've got to pace yourself to prevent the stiffness, soreness and injuries that can typically happen when you're not doing it right."

he's right. There's the giant metal umbrella coat-stand for a classy infusion of humour; a multitude of hobby-inspired birdhouses; four-foot metal lobsters for fishing enthusiasts with no attachment to subtlety; and an old tricycle planter box aimed at the nostalgic set. Everywhere, whimsy abounds.

But how do you actually start adding lawn art to an outdoor living space?

"Instead of throwing stuff in the attic or garage, put it out in the open," Honold says.

He suggests displaying old garden tools, metal toys, or wine glasses and decanters. Chipped plates can find new life in concrete stepping stones, and wooden kid-size furniture always adds a nice

Start with the unexpected

For a big splash, Honold recommends an artistic gate.

- Set the tone. Whether installing custom wrought-iron doors with elaborate scenes on them or simply taking a can of bright red paint to a basic home-store model, gates can reflect personality of the house.

- Welcome. "Think about all the things a gate can say," Honold says. If the message you're trying to send is "we're magical," find ways to add fairy elements to your garden. For kids and anyone with more than a passing fancy for Harry Potter, there's nothing quite as charming as coming across traces of pixies in the yard.

touch. "Focus on what's readily available or representative of your area," Honold adds.

"Coastal areas might have fishing nets and glass floats, and places close to rural communities will have farm equipment." In Washington state, he says, "people bring us old saws and ask us to laser-cut their name or address on them."

Hornets win NBA draft lottery

The New Orleans Hornets, recently sold by the NBA to Saints owner Tom Benson, have won the NBA's draft lottery and the No. 1 pick overall. The Hornets, after a difficult season in which they traded all-star Chris Paul, have a shot to add another superstar, with Kentucky freshman Anthony Davis considered the best player available. The Hornets moved up from the fourth spot, where they had a 13.7 per cent chance, to earn the pick. The Charlotte Bobcats, after the worst season in NBA history, fell to the No. 2 pick. Washington will pick third and Cleveland fell one spot to fourth. The Toronto Raptors will pick eighth.

NHL. Talented forward gives Los Angeles 1-0 lead in championship final over New Jersey Anze Kopitar scored 8:13 into overtime as the Los Angeles Kings defeated the New Jersey Devils 2-1 to open the Stanley Cup final on Wednesday night.

Justin Williams found Kopitar with a backhand pass from his own blue-line and the Kings star raced in alone, deking Martin Brodeur before slipping it over him.

Los Angeles, the eighth seed in the West, is now 9-0 on the road in the playoffs.

The Kings are also 3-0 in overtime in these playoffs. The Devils are 4-2.

In a tight game without much offence from either side, New Jersey's attack disappeared for long stretches before a sold-out crowd of 17,625.

The Devils had five shots in the first period and just four in the second, but still managed to pull even at 1-1 late in the second period on a deflection off a Kings defenceman.

"(There) wasn't much going on offensively for either team," said Kings coach Darryl Sutter. "The way the teams play, it's such tight quarters out there ... pretty evenly matched teams. There's probably going to be more than one overtime game."

Los Angeles outshot New Jersey 22-16 in regulation.

"We'll be better on Saturday night.... I don't believe we deserved to win tonight, that's the bottom line and that's what happened," said Devils coach Peter DeBoer. "If we had have won, we would have been sneaking one out."

For all the talk of Jonathan Quick as the Kings uberstopper in goal, New Jersey made it easy for him for long stretches. He was there when needed, however.

Brodeur was also sharp in a third period that eventually opened up.

Colin Fraser scored in the first for the Los Angeles.

Anton Volchenkov replied in the second for the Devils.

Teams winning Game 1 of the final have gone on to win the cup in 55 of 72 seasons (76 per cent) since the league went to the best-of-seven format in 1939.

Boston bucked that trend last season, however.

Game 2 goes Saturday in New Jersey.

It marked the 24th overtime game of the 2012 playoffs. And the first Game 1 of the final to go to overtime since 2002, when the visiting Carolina Hurricanes defeated the Detroit Red Wings 3-2.

The game opened to a sea of red-clad fans waving white towels in the Prudential Center stands.

But it proved to be a less colourful start on the ice, with both teams looking to nip the other's offence in the bud.

The first shot of the game took more than three minutes into the game before the Kings to record, after a poor defensive pass behind the Devils' net led to a giveaway.

And it was more than six minutes into the game before New Jersey finally tested Quick.

"I think it was probably the worst game of the playoffs for us," Devils star forward Ilya Kovalchuk said. "Maybe we were a little too nervous before the game started, but it's all excuses so we have to make sure we know what we didn't do right and be a different team next game."

Heat stage comeback to beat Celtics in OT

The biggest post-season comeback in Miami Heat franchise history wasn't enough.

The Heat needed more — and got it, digging deep to take a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

LeBron James scored 34 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, Dwyane Wade scored 23 and the Heat rallied from 15 down to beat the Boston Celtics 115-111 in overtime on Wednesday night.

Mario Chalmers scored 22 for the Heat, who won despite an unbelievable night by Rajon Rondo. The Celtics guard played all 53 minutes and scored 44 points, dished out 10 assists and grabbed eight rebounds. The Heat expected Boston's best — and the Celtics didn't disappoint.

"This group had resolve," Wade said of the Celtics. "They came out and played a great game. It was physical early. They brought the game to us. That can't happen. We used our crowd and the energy to get back into the game and we had to play better."

Paul Pierce scored 21 points, Kevin Garnett added 18 and Ray Allen 13 for Boston.

Rondo finished 16 of 24 from the floor, 10 of 12 from the foul line and made both his three-point tries.

"He was absolutely phenomenal," Celtics coach Doc Rivers said, "put us, put the whole team at times on his shoulders.... We had a lot of opportunities to win the game."

CFL looks back at Grey Cup and 'where it all began'

CFL. League pays tribute to big game's beginnings ahead of 100th showdown

In 180 days the 100th Grey Cup will be held in Toronto, and the CFL paid tribute Wednesday to the game that became a national event.

The first Grey Cup was played at Toronto's Rosedale Field, and it was remembered with a plaque honouring the 1909 game between the University of Toronto and the Parkdale Canoe Club.

"The Grey Cup is synonymous with Canadian culture and unity, and this is where it all began," CFL commissioner Mark Cohon said.

"Just as Canada has come so very far as a country, the Grey Cup has grown into something bigger than sport. It's a symbol of our ability to come together to celebrate who, and what, we are as Canadians."

Tennis. Canada's Wozniak sets up clash with top-seeded Azarenka

Canadian Aleksandra Wozniak defeated China's Zheng Jie 6-2, 6-4 on Wednesday to reach the third round of the French Open.

The Blainville, Que., native will face top-seeded Victoria Azarenka in the next round.

Wozniak dominated in a near-flawless first set and overcame a lapse while leading by a break in the second. That miscue was partly caused by a long injury timeout taken by the No. 34-ranked Zheng with Wozniak leading 3-2.

The pause left Wozniak to practise her serve on the court while a doctor and trainer

Venus out of tourney

Venus Williams followed little sister Serena out of the French Open. The elder Williams lost to Agnieszka Radwanska 6-2, 6-3 Wednesday in the second round. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS spent at least 10 minutes examining and patching a heel blister on Zheng's left foot.

Wozniak managed to get her concentration back when play resumed despite exchanging breaks with her opponent.

"I'm content with this win," Wozniak said. "But the injury time was very long. You cool off a bit when that happens. After she was treated she still moved well, so it was not an easy win."

The Canadian won her last match against Azarenka — albeit at the junior level.

"It will be important to come out and only focus on my own game," Wozniak said. "I can't let her game or anything else bother me. I have to focus on each point and mix it up."

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

Someone you meet on your travels will tell you something interesting. It may sound a bit harsh but you know the truth when you hear it, so listen, learn and then act.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

What happens today will awaken your sense of injustice and compel you to take action.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

Don't worry about other people's feelings: if you have something to say then you must come out with it right away.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

Sometimes conflict is inevitable and that is the way of things now.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22.

With mind planet Mercury strongly aspected you won't doubt for a moment that you are doing the right thing.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

You won't be shy about letting the world know what you think today.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

Cosmic activity in one of the more dynamic areas of your chart, which endows you with no small amount of courage, so don't sit there and take criticism that isn't warranted — go on the offensive.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

If you want something done you can, of course, do it yourself, but you can just as easily persuade others to do the work for you.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21.

Trust your instincts today and follow them wherever they might lead.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 20.

It's all about attitude: if you believe you can reach your goal you will find a way.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb. 18.

The best way to avoid trouble is to think before you act — but how likely is that when you feel so adventurous?

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

You may not take kindly to others telling you how to do things but if you are smart you will listen.
